THE SUBSCRIBER, AFTER TWENTY.

It's year's experience as practical printer, fourteen years of which produced a competition for rollers which can not be excelled either for accommy, durability or the excellence of the work it produces. It contains no molasses, but is made from No. 1 extra-refined do-cent gliss, load sugar and hougy. Rollers made from the composition last three times as long as the ordinary ones. They will not run down in summer, and are especially adapted for xylographic printing, as they present a smooth and beautiful surface, not to be obtained from the ordinary ones. Rollers made from this composition will do their work blacker, with less ink, than ordinary ones, as the present of the continuity at the rate of 30 conts as pound. Rollers of large size cast at the same rate per pound; Cord or Proof Bollers, 50 conts each. Frinters sending orders from a distance, accompanied by cash, will please state the temperature of their office, that each order may be most satisfactorily fulfilled.

THE SARSPIRLD MOSUMEST AT LINERICE-

The Sarsfield Mosumert at Limerics—
Merrico Last Night at Hannan's Hall.
The meeting of the Irish-Americans last night at Hannan's Hall, in sid of the projected monument at Limerick, Ireland, to the memory of Patrick Sarsfield, was very largely attended. After the minutes of the previous meeting had been read and approved. Stephen McGroarty, Esq., being called upon, rose and addressed the audience at some length.

He eulogized the Irish character for patrictism and devotion to freedom, and pointed to Patrick Sarsfield as one of the most noted among the heroes of the Green Isle. He insisted that politics had nothing whatever to do with the present movement, as had been represented, but this only, to enter a protest, which should stand forever against the wrongs of the British Government during the past 300 years

Mr. Halpin was somewhat sorry that he had been called upon, and yet half glad; for he wished to correct an impression that had been created at the first meeting. He was not opposed to the movement, and while he recognized in Sarsfield an eminent and worthy Irishman and a great General, he still believed he fought in a wrong cause, and instead of fighting for Irish liberty he fought for English despotism. If, said he, you subscribe to this fund do it for one purpose only, and you will be right. Subscribe to it as to the memory of an eminent Irishman, and not to that of an Irish martyr.

Mr. Walsh spoke of a recent visit to Ircland, and as it that he was a practical man. He hoped that the audience would assist in the movement now on foot, to do honor to the memory of one of the best soldiers and purest patriots that ever lived, and to do it immediately.

When Mr. W. had taken his seat, some one arose to speak, but was hissed from the stem.

Accident at the Catholic Institute.—A portion of a keg of nails fell from the roof of the new Catholic Institute, corner of Longworth and Vine, yesterday, upon a carpenter named John Ringstiller, who was at work upon the first floor, striking him upon the head and injuring him quite badly. He was conveyed to his residence on Vine-street, opposite Mercer, where his wounds were attended to. Although painfully severe, they are not likely to prove fatal. mmediately. When Mr. W. had taken his seat, some or When Mr. W. had taken his seat, some one arose to speak, but was hissed from the stand and Mr. McPartland was also prevented from speaking. When order had been restored, the President, Col. R. M. Moore, made a statement of the object of the meeting, and the manner in which it had been called, and called upon Mr. Tooby, who, in a few well digested and practical remarks, threw oil upon the troubled waters and restored the audience to quiet.

Mr. McPartland then took the floor, and asserted that the whole movement was po-

Assault with Intent to Kill.—A difficulty of some kind occurred yesterday afternoon in the vicinity of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railway Depot, between John Harris, Thomas Lavery and John Finch, during which the former was very badly trested. He received several severe, although not necessarily fatal, wounds from the hands of his assailants, and was removed to the Commercial Hospital. Lavery and Finch were arrested and committed to the Ninth-street Station-house, to await an examination before Judge Lowe. Mr. McPartiand then took the floor, and asserted that the whole movement was political from head to foot. He had heard from good authority that the present Mayor of Limerick was a tool of British royalty, and as the movement originated there he had good reason to believe it political. But even here we were not free from this charge. There was a class of men, politicians, whom the speaker despised, who were to be found in every assembly, whether political, social or religious, and they had already been at this meeting with their blarney. He warned his countrymen to beware of them and the grogseller, for the latter attempted by the influence of liquor to do that which the former could not accomplish by logic and argument. He thought that Ireland should be free before the monument was erected, and then the epitaph to Emmett and the monument to Sarsfield might be given to the world without shame.

The meeting adjourned at a late hour with-MRETING OF THE TRUSTERS OF THE WATER
WORDS.—The Trusters of the Water Works at their meeting yesterday, allowed bills amounting to $1,436 %, of which $492 was to pay wages of hands employed.

The Superintendent was directed to have pipe laid into Washington Park, upon the statement of Mr. Huribut, that the Park Commissioners expected to pay for the water used, as other consumers.

Pipe was ordered to be taid on Wadestreet, from Jones to Cutter.

The Superintendent reported that the twenty-nine inch line of pipe was now laid to a point east of Sycamore on Pearl-street, Burner to Drath.—A little girl about thirteen years of age, daughter of Edward Flood, residing on Third-street, near Kilgore, was burned almost to death, night before last, under the following circumstances: For some time past she has been suffering from epilepsy, and the spasms have of late been frequent and severe. On Wednesday night her parents were kept by her bedside until nearly morning, and when they supposed she had been relieved for a time, they retired, leaving a light burning. In a little while they were aroused by her screams, when they found that by some means her clothing had caught fire and that she was enveloped in flames. She was instantly rescued from her perilous situation, but not until her body had been severely burned. Her injuries may not prove fatal, but they are extremely painful, and in all probability will disfigure her for life. BOY DROWNED,-A boy between ten and Boy DEGWEED.—A boy between ten and eleven years of age, James McCloskey, who resided with his parents on Front-street, east of the Little Miami Railroad Depot, was drowned in the river, day before yesterday afternoon, a short distance above the Water-works. He was bathing at the time, and, yearuring too far into the water, was drawn by the force of the current under a raft, and drowned before assistance could reach him. The body was recovered, and conveyed to the home of his parents. SUICIDE BY DROWNING.—The body of a man named S. Straus was found in the river, day before yesterday, in Delhi Township, opposite the Two-Mile House. Coroner Carey held an inquest upon the body, and a verdict was rendered of accidental drowning; but since then a brother of the deceased has expressed his opinion that it was a case of self-destruction. He states that his brother has been laboring under a kind of morbid melancholy for some time, and has often threatened to commit suicide. The deceased was about twenty-five years of age and unmarried, but the immediate cause of the gloom that led to his death is not known.

Dr. Carey tost a package containing the wallet of the unfortunate man, together with a number of papers, which were found upon his person, and can not be of service to any one save his friends, while on his return to the city. The finder will place the relatives of the deceased under an obligation that will not be forgotten if he will return the package to the office of the Coroner.

Force and Velocity of the Wind,—Interesting observations on the force and velocity with which the wind blows at times, were made lately during a gale in Liverpool. At ten o'clock on the morning of the day when observations were taken, the velocity of the wind was forty-seven miles per hour. Its velocity gradually decreased until between eleven and twelve o'clock on the next morning, when it was fifteen miles per hour, the lowest point observed during the gale. On the preceding night, however, it was blowing at twenty-seven miles per hour.

During the succeeding hour it fell to nineteen niles; then rose again until three and four o'clock of the next morning, when a velocity of fifty-nine miles, the highest soted, was attained. An accident to the anomometer just at this time interrupted the observations. The pressure registered, when the velocity was thirty-two miles, was twelve pounds to the square foot. During the gale, which occurred on Christmas day, 1852, a pressure of forty-two pounds to the square foot was noted, the velocity being seventy miles; and on the 27th of the same month, when the velocity was seventy-one miles, the pressure was forty-three pounds to the square pressure of the pressure of the square pressure was forty-three pounds miles; and on the 27th of the same month, when the velocity was seventy-one miles, the pressure was forty-three pounds to the square foot. This gale during which these last observations were taken, was the severest ever known in Liverpool.

State Politics—Cashdates von Clerk.

STATE POLITICS—CABBIDATES FOR CLERK OF THE COURT OF APPRALS.—Three candidates for the Clerkship of the Court of Appeals are now in the field, and the votes they receive will in a great measure determine the politics of the State in November. Mr. McCarty was nominated by the regular Democratic Convention, and will be generally supported by the Breckinridge men, though he can not carry the full strength of the party. R. B. Bolling is the Independent of Douglas candidate, but will get at least 5,000 votes from his Democratic competitors, on account of his personal popularity. Gen. Coombs, the Union candidate, will about poll his party strength. Should Coombs be elected by a large majority the State will undoubtedly go for Bell; should his majority not exceed five or six thousand, it will, without doubt, go for Breckinridge. Bolling will receive about 20,000 votes.

This is not the time of the transmission of intelligence, which is far less, but the time which it requires to get up the maximum tension of electricity in the wires after they are connected with the battery.

Value of an Electric Light at Sea.—According to Prof. Faraday, the great value of the electric light for light-house purpose consists in its intensity. So much light is gained by it in a very small space, that only a small optical apparatus is needed to converge the light and throw it all in the required direction. In order to obtain an equal amount of light from an oil flame, the size of the flame must be 2,000 times as large as that of the electric light, and the apparatus must be very much larger. An electric light is obtained from magnetic electricity, which is supplied from magnetic wheels driven by two horse-power engines.

Shocking Domestic Tragedy A Man Kills his Wife and Commiss Satelds. The telegraph has stated the fact that Col. Lewis, of Chimney Rook, N. Y., killed himself and wife on Friday night, but the mails contain these particulars:

contain these particulars:

On Friday night a number of men were at Lewis's store, and among them one, of whom, it is said, Lewis was very jealous, and has charged him with improper conduct toward his wife. Early on Saturday morning Lewis was seen at work outside and near his house. He was also heard to call "Mary," his wife's name. Soon after this a lad coming to the store on business found no one there, and so went into a workshop near, inquiring if they knew where Lewis was. A blacksmith told the boy to go up stairs, which he did; but soon returned, saving "Lewis was lying asleep on the floor." The smith then went up stairs and found as the lad had said.
On examination, he perceived that Lewis

The wife of a farm laborer living in Buckinghamshire, England, has a little son whose lower limbs are unfortunately useless. Medical advice and skill likely to be of any services. ical advice and skill likely to be of any service was not to be had except in the metropolis, and was not available to her except in connection with one of the public hospitals. The poor child's case, though by no means hopeless, was not one which according to hospital regulations, could be admitted for in-door freatment. As an out-door patient all that was possible might be done for him. Out of her husband's scanty earnings, however, it was impossible that she could pay for conveyance to and from London; but a mother's love was not to be defrauded of its oliject by any such obstacle.

It was possible that the boy might be cured, and that was enough. The thirty miles intervening between him and the means of his possible restoration were to her affection but as a step. She put her boy on means of his possible restoration were to her affection but as a step. She put her boy on her shoulder, and, week by week, she carried him all those weary miles, slept for a night at the hospital, and, next day, resuming her precious load, bore him cheerfully home again. For nearly four months did she do this, till her great exertion brought on a serious illness, and she herself had to seek hospital care. Recovered, but never again to be the strong and healthy women she was to be the strong and healthy woman she was before, she resumed the task of maternal affection, and though less frequently, still carries her child to receive the attention of the kind and skillful physicians of that noble

GORGEOUS MANUSCRIPTS.—Of those gorgeous manuscripts spoken of by St. Jerome, "books written in gold and silver, on purple parchments," the chief remaining ones are the Codex Argenteus, written A. D. 360; the Peatler of St. Germain de Pres; a fragment of the New Testament, in the Cottonian Library, England; and a copy of the Book of Genesis in the Imperial Library at Vienna. These are all in the Greek character, and the Genesis contains eighty-eight miniature paintings. The Genesis belonging to Sir Robert Cotton, which was nearly destroyed by fire in 1781, was illustrated with no less then 250 of these miniatures, each about four inches square. These rich manuscripts are Byzantine, rather than Roman, belonging to the Eastern empire, with its infusion of Oriental, and especially Persian art. They mostly date from the fifth century and later, after the decay of art in the West.

WANT OF FAITH IN THE FAR WEST.—Willis, in a late number of the Home Journal, does not give a very flattering description of the stranger's reception at the far West. "At St. Louis," he says, "we arrived at the degree of longitude beyond which (we then and subsequently were made to know) the traveler is not trusted.
